WHO'S WHO ..... Back Cover

In Mountain Guide, we've tried to answer questions you might ask. Keep it for reference. This booklet was edited by Journaliers and Theta Sigma Phi, men's and women's journalism professional societies. Editors are Nancy Scott, Sue Hansen, and Dewey Helmick.

From the President of the University:

Welcome to West Virginia University.

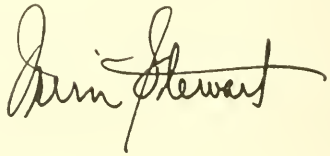
The University offers you opportunities to acquire culture that will enrich your life. It offers training in skills that can enhance your earning ability and your usefulness to society. It offers facilities for your physical development and for recreation through sports. It provides social activities that can increase your ability to get on with your fellow man and derive enjoyment from leisure hours. The community's churches and the University cooperate in providing means for meeting your spiritual needs.

In short, your University is endeavoring to provide for your education in the broadest sense—mentally, physically, and spiritually.

But your education will depend largely upon you. Everything else revolves around your attitude, your eagerness for an education. The University is here to help you; it cannot do the whole job for you, even if it would.

What you do here will largely influence what you will do the rest of your life. Make it count.

Best wishes to all of you.



From the President of the Student Body:

Welcome to West Virginia University.

Today, we welcome you as a freshman student and as a fellow Mountaineer. I hope, however, that you will not become "just another" Mountaineer, but that you will become a real part of our University. The opportunities for participation are many and varied, and they all add up to one thing—your education and your personal development.

There is a place for you in some one or several of our campus organizations, and there is an even larger place for you in the activities of our student body as a whole. I hope that you will find both.

Last spring we ratified a new student body constitution that provides for more effective student government and for more student participation in that government. I hope that you will take an interest in our activities and become a part of them. One of the objectives of our University is to develop strong leadership and health citizenship, and student government is the essential equipment for this development.

Best wishes for a happy and successful stay at West Virginia University.

Sincerely yours,

Jack Justice

Be Prepared

Before Arriving

Of course, you have been planning your University sojourn for months, but there are a few things you should double check to save trouble later. Be sure your transcripts have been sent to the University Registrar. Make your room and board arrangements as soon as possible before you come to be assured of a place to sleep and eat.

Check expenditures. Tuition is $42 a semester for most courses of study. Room and board in the dorms is about an average of $260 a semester. Supplies and lab fees may run up to about $50. So come prepared. Rooms in the dorm are completely furnished but you will want to bring towels, bedspreads, and curtains, maybe a radio.

Clothes follow conventional lines on the University campus. Sweaters, blouses, and skirts for the girls; slacks, sweaters, sport shorts, and jackets for the men. Suits are always in style. Formal occasions demand the usual dress clothes and you may want to bring blue jeans for those strictly informal occasions. Don't forget rain equipment.

After Arriving

Get settled in your room, give your roommate the once over, and then find out where and when meals are served. When you go to register take a pen with plenty of ink. Have a tentative schedule of classes made out before you go, to avoid confusion. Go exactly at the time your ticket indicates or classes may be filled. It's a good idea to take a class schedule booklet, obtained at the Administration building, and a catalog with you. Be sure you are taking the right courses.

Pay your fees while you still have the money. It is best to pay immediately after registering (residence halls fees may be paid in four installments during a semester). Buy your books and supplies right away too. Then you can mark off those expenditures. You don't want to get behind in classes because you don't have your books. Used books cost less. Be sure you have everything you need to start classes off right.

Above all, observe all dormitory and campus rules. They are there to help, not to hinder you.

But enough about details, and on to the more colorful features of this thing called "College."

Freshman Week

This first week of your college career is planned to help you get acquainted with the ways and means of the W.V.U. campus. You will enjoy all these new and interesting experiences. Participating in this week's activities will help you know your way around and help you to know the right answer when a new situation confronts you later on.

Student Government

The University's student government is made up of an Executive Council, Legislature, and Student Court, which were established by a Constitution passed this year. The constitution will take effect in May, 1952.

The Legislature, composed of representatives from all colleges and schools, will set up the student program. The ten-member Executive Council will be the administrative body, and will include the president of the student body, vice-president, and presidents and vice-presidents of each class. Each of the seven members on the Student Court will be appointed. This body will handle freshman rules, constitutional revision, and controversial issues of the Legislature or Council.

Freshmen get their chance to participate in student government a few weeks after entering school. A non-partisan election is held to choose a president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer.

Two or more campus political parties nominate slates for the general election held each spring. Students vote for Legislature, Council, and class office candidates. They also elect a nonpartisan representative to the Athletic Council. The Legislature ratifies or rejects Publications Committee appointments to student publications editorial staffs.

A. W. S. Rules

Every woman enrolled at West Virginia University is a member of Associated Women Students. The A.W.S. Council is elected by and from the women's student body and draws up and enforces the rules that govern University women.

The A.W.S. Council's aim is to keep the University in a position of respect and to maintain self-government for the University co-ed. The rules won't tie you down unless you break them. Here are some main ones.

First-semester freshmen are free until 7:30 P.M. the first four week nights. On the weekends, you will have 11 P.M. permission. If at the end of the first semester you have a grade average of 2.3 or better, you will have one 10:30 permission a week. A 2.6 brings two 10:30 permissions. A 3 point average or higher earns 11:00 permission every night. Even better is making a 4 point, which brings upperclass privileges.

Upperclassmen have 11:00 P.M. permission on week nights and Sundays; 12 o'clock on Friday and Saturday. Twelve o'clocks are often given freshmen for special parties. A 1:30 A.M. curfew is allowed for some of the big dances. Be on time—even a minute's tardiness brings restrictions.

You may sign out for home any weekend. You must, however, have your parent's permission before leaving for any other destination.

If you enter as a sophomore, you will be under freshman rules until mid-semester. Then you will have upperclass privileges, if you have a 2 point average. First semester grades are important.

Student Testing and Counseling Services

The University provides counseling and guidance services through several agencies.

Educational guidance on selection of courses and organization of your course of study is provided by academic advisers of the various colleges, schools, divisions, and departments in the University. You will be assigned to an academic adviser and consult with him before registering each semester. Requests for further guidance of this type may be made to your adviser, to the office of the dean of your college, or to the head of the department in which you are interested.

In addition, guidance and counseling service of another type is offered. Educational, vocational, and personal counseling on the selection of a major field of study or a career, the diagnosis and improvement of reading and study skills, and the diagnosis and treatment of personal adjustment problems is available to any regularly enrolled student in the University, free of charge. This counseling service includes the administration and interpretation of interest, aptitude, ability, achievement, and personality tests. You may request this individual testing and counseling service through the office of the Department of Psychology, Room 105, Woodburn Hall.

Join Up

Campus organizations exist for you. They offer you a chance to know people. Don't spend all your time in your room. Study, of course, but take advantage of one of the best parts of college life—activities. They will give you experience and good times not to be had elsewhere. There are about 80 all-campus and departmental professional, social, and honorary organizations.

Young Women's Christian Association

A chance to make friends. Interest groups in subjects you enjoy, leadership training, social functions and programs. "Y" is open to all women.

Young Men's Christian Association

Nonsectarian fellowship with other students and faculty members, leadership and religious training. Open to all men.

Women's, Men's Glee Clubs

An opportunity to sing classical and semi-classical music even if your voice is not trained. Performances given on and off campus. Class credit given. Open to all after try-outs.

Women's Recreation Association

An evening of organized recreation and sports for the athletic or just energetic girl. Open to all women.

University Band

Music in a spirit-arousing style. Performances for football and basketball games and other functions on and off campus. Open to all after try-out. Class credit.

Dolphin

Swimming the year round in Moore Hall pool. Presents an annual water pageant. Open to all women after try-out. Points are given at try-outs for different strokes and dives.

University-Community Mixed Chorus

Men and women sing together such works as The Messiah. Class credit given.

Orchesis

Modern dance honorary for those women who have had or are taking a second semester of modern dancing. Open to all women after try-out.

University Players

An outlet for amateur actors and actresses or those who like to work backstage. Members are all those taking part in 'U' radio or stage productions. Try-outs for productions are announced in the Daily Athenaeum.

Honoraries

Li-toon-awa, sophomore honorary for women who have shown active interest in campus activities, good scholarship, and all-round personality during their freshman year. Members are selected the last month of school.

Chimes, national junior honorary for women with outstanding records of campus service and scholarship. Members receive leadership training and give assistance to other campus groups and programs.

Mortar Board, national honorary for outstanding senior women. Recognition is given to those with wide activities and good scholarship. Members give service to the campus as a whole.

Sphinx members are senior men who have been prominent in campus programs and activities. It sponsors and preserves campus traditions, such as the Mother's Day Sing.

Mountain, men's honorary which brings campus leaders together with the common interest of unity.

Fi Batar Cappar, mock honorary for men which promotes school spirit by such things as thuses, and sponsors campus functions. Any resemblance between it and Phi Beta Kappa is an accident.

Fraternities and Sororities

Perhaps you are interested in becoming a member of a fraternity or sorority. If so, you will go through a conventional rush period during which you will be able to look them all over. Formal rushing is held at the beginning of school and informal rushing goes on at intervals during the year. The aim—to further the interests of the University—is common with all the groups. If you are interested, information will be supplied at meetings, in booklets, or by the members themselves.

There are eight national sororities, twenty-one national fraternities, one independent men's organization.

Panhellenic Council is made up of two representatives from each sorority. The Council formulates sorority policy and sets up rushing rules. The group also promotes the policies, issues, and events of the University.

Council of Fraternity Presidents consists of the president of each fraternity. Its purposes are to serve the University by aiding in the promotion of those things beneficial to the University as well as the fraternities.

Here is a complete list of fraternal groups.

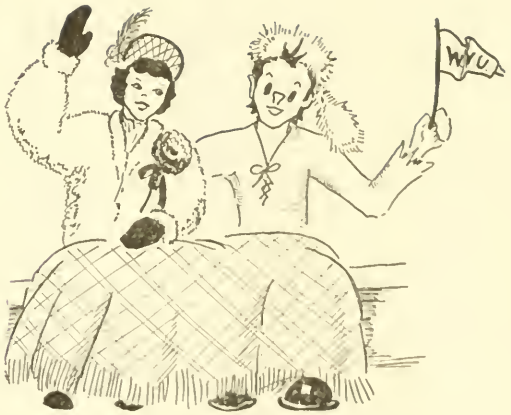
Religion

Religion plays an important part in student life at West Virginia University. The church of your choice is eager to welcome you to all its activities. Most of the churches have organized student groups for worship, study, fellowship, and special programs and projects.

There are recreational facilities in all of the church buildings or student centers where you are welcome to spend your leisure time. Suppers and breakfasts are planned frequently to help you enlarge your circle of friends. Upperclass group leaders invite you to join them in study, in service projects, and in worship.

The following groups are members of the University Religious Council: Baptist Student Fellowship, Disciple Student Foundation (Christian), Canterbury Club (Episcopal), Hillel Foundation (Jewish), Lutheran Student Association, Wesley Foundation (Methodist), Westminster Foundation (Presbyterian), Young Men's Christian Association, and Young Women's Christian Association.

Regular meetings of the church groups are held Sunday evenings. You are urged to locate the church of your choice and attend it regularly. The pastor is ready to meet you, to know you, and to help you. Any of the guides can direct you to your church. See the Religion at West Virginia University booklet for details. It will tell you the times of services and group meetings and give information about leaders.



Traditions

HOMECOMING brings grads back to the campus. They are welcomed with bands, torchlights, floats, and open houses. This year the Homecoming Game will feature the W.V.U. and South Carolina football teams on November 10. The Homecoming Queen and her court are crowned at the Homecoming Dance.

Mountaineer Welkend finds the men with "them thar shootin' arns" and the women in burlap and calico. drinks free cider from a "still" and attends another Everyone dresses according to his Mountaineer heritage, drinks free cider from a "still" and attends another football classic. This year it will be October 12-13, the weekend of the Richmond game. "Miss Mountaineer" presides over a jug-band dance.

West Virginia University Day, February 7, marks the anniversary of the University's founding. A dignified celebration, it is highlighted by observances throughout the State. Last year some 200 dinners and other gatherings were held by 175 organizations in all of the State's 55 counties.

Greater West Virginia Welkend comes in May—the weekend of Mother's Day. Everything is turned over to parents who come to the campus. Some of the major events are Link Day, The Mother's Day Sing, performances and exhibits by organizations and departments, and open houses. Accommodations for your parents can be arranged through the University.

Link Day is the day the honoraries initiate new members in stately ceremonies on the Library Terrace.

The Mother's Day Sing, sponsored by Sphinx, finds sororities, fraternities, and dormitory groups in choral competition for the first place trophies.

Dances and Balls are regular events. Some of these given every year are: the Freshman Mix; the Men's Pan, sponsored by the Council of Fraternity Presidents; the Women's Pan, given by Panhellenic Council; the Engineers' Ball; the Golddiggers' Ball, when the girls do the asking, send crazy corsages; the Military Ball; the Miami Triad, sponsored by three fraternities; and, finally, the Senior Ball, bringing all-night permission for senior girls and 2 A.M. for others.

The Mountaineer is a character you'll see at every game this fall. With his coon-skin cap, gun, and peculiar antics, he provides entertainment and spirit.

Thuses get everyone in the right spirit with bonfires and yells to cheer the team on.

Woodburn Tower strikes the hour and half-hour and has been known to strike thirteen times at midnight.

The Chimes sound out each morning and noon from the Administration Building tower.

Mountainlair

Mountainlair is your recreation center. It makes available to every student informal and scheduled recreation of all kinds. After paying the student fee along with your tuition, you will be given a Mountainlair card. Carry this with you at all times because it entitles you to all the facilities at Mountainlair.

Swimming, bowling, Ping-pong, shuffleboard, card games, badminton, chess, reading, music—all this and a snack bar, too, you'll find at Mountainlair.

Special events are scheduled every week. They include movies, tournaments, forums, dance classes, all for your pleasure and participation. The Student Program Council and the various Mountainlair committees, on which you may serve, are responsible for planning these special events. Other programs for the year include the weekly symphony hour, square dances, informal and formal dances, holiday parties, and the annual spring Fiesta.

The physical set-up of Mountainlair includes: first floor—swimming pool, lounge, news stand, ballroom, conference room, campus organizational room, activities room, music room, Student Council office, snack bar, and bowling alleys; second floor—balcony, dance studio, and student program council office.

Mountainlair's events and activities are planned so that you may spend your leisure doing the things you like to do. Watch the Daily Athenaeum and bulletin boards for the latest 'Lair doings.

Publications

There are three recognized campus publications. They include a campus newspaper, a yearbook, and a humor magazine.

The Daily Athenaeum comes out Tuesday through Saturdays. It is found in boxes at the entrance of each building. You pay 75 cents a semester subscription fee along with your tuition.

The Monticola, the yearbook, has not appeared recently because of financial troubles. But it ordinarily includes pictures of thousands of students, organizations, and other information of permanent interest.

Moonshine, the humor magazine, appears about six times during the school year and includes cartoons, stories, and jokes written by its student staff.

How do you get on the staffs of these publications? It's easy to work for the Monticola and Moonshine when they are publishing. Merely contact the editor or the business manager, depending on which phase you are interested in.

The Daily Athenaeum is published by the students of the School of Journalism, who also prepare a radio newscast each day. As sophomores, journalism students are reporters. As upperclassmen, they are the executives of this model town paper, preparing themselves for work on city newspapers.

Top staff jobs on student publications—editor of Monticola, editor of Moonshine, and editor-in-chief, managing editor, and business manager of the Daily Athenaeum—are appointed by the student publications committee of the University Senate. The Legislature ratifies or rejects these appointments.

Grades

West Virginia University's grading system is similar to that used by most schools: A is excellent; B good; C average; D, poor but passing; F, failure; I, incomplete; W, withdrew before mid-semester; WP, withdrew passing after mid-semester; WF, withdrew failing after passing mid-semester; FIW, failure irregular withdrawal.

If you drop out of a class or the University, make certain that you withdraw regularly—go to the Registrar's Office and ask for a withdrawal card. You can't just quit!

A ..... 4 grade points per hour
B ..... 3 grade points per hour
C ..... 2 grade points per hour

D ..... 1 grade point per hour
F ..... No grade points

An I means work must be completed. Points are given according to the grade received.

Numerical averages are reached by dividing the total number of grade points earned by the number of credit hours for which you are registered. For graduation, you must have twice as many grade points as you have semester hours. In other words, you must have a C, or a 2 point, average. Study your catalog in order to be fully informed about grades and proper courses.

Ranks and Titles

Ranks and titles are especially confusing to new students, but even the upperclassmen often do not know the exact meanings.

The President of the University is the head man, and is the chairman of the Council of Administration. Other members of this group are the Vice-president of the University, the Registrar, and deans and directors of the various schools and colleges.

The University Senate is a legislative body with jurisdiction over all matters pertaining to the University. It includes all professors, associate professors, and assistant professors in addition to the Council of Administration members.

Each College and School is headed by a Dean or Director. Teachers begin as instructors, work their way up to assistant professor, associate professor, and professor.

Freshmen students are likely to meet two particular members of the administration first. They are the Director of Student Affairs, Joseph C. Gluck, who supervises student organizational activity; and, the Dean of Women, Miss Edna Arnold.

Intramural Sports

A vital part of your extra-curricular activities is the intramural sports program. It is a program of sports for the individual student—designed to recognize your desire for participation in athletics, to provide an outlet for your physical talents, and to give you an opportunity to spend your spare time in healthful and beneficial activity.

Competition for men is provided in softball, basketball, football, and other minor sports. Leagues are divided into four groups: fraternities, church leagues, dormitory leagues, and independent groups.

Bowling is one of the most popular intramural sports. Wrestling is also a growing part of the program. It is not unusual to see crowds of 300 to 500 students gather to watch intramural track contests in Mountaineer Stadium.

Indoor track and tennis are two campus sports that are getting more and more attention. Handball, horseshoes, Ping-pong, and volleyball are among the minor sports that give every student an outlet for his particular taste in sports.

Women's intramurals consist of volleyball, badminton, basketball, Ping-pong, and swimming. Sorority, dormitory, and town groups compete with each other for the first-place cup. An all-year cup is also awarded to the men's group having the highest number of points.

Intercollegiate Sports

Football

Woefully lacking in material and facing a rugged schedule, new Head Coach Art Lewis led his Mountaineer football squad to two wins against eight losses during the 1950 campaign. The Gold and Blue gridders played their first season in the Southern Conference. They posted one league victory over Richmond but lost to Washington and Lee, George Washington, and Maryland. Outside the conference, the Mountaineers downed Western Reserve in the season opener and lost out to Fordham, Virginia, Pitt, Penn State, and Texas Western.

Although his squad will be hard hit by graduation, Lewis is looking forward this Fall to a much more successful season. He will have a number of top gridders up from last year's plebe team, which won four of five games. In addition, Lewis will be able to draw from a capable crop of freshman players, who will be eligible for varsity competition under a new Southern Conference ruling.

Assisting Lewis with the coaching duties for next year will be Jack Shockey, Harold Lahar, and Quentin Barnette. Gene Corum will continue at the helm of the Little Mountaineers.

Basketball

Coach Robert "Red" Brown took over the head basketball coaching reins from the late Lee Patton last year and guided his West Virginia charges to 18 wins in 27 outings. The Mountaineers finished second in the regular season conference standings, only to be eliminated by William and Mary in the first round of the Southern Conference tournament at Raleigh, N.C.

Mark Workman broke every record in the local books during the 1950-51 season. He is now the holder of the single-game and single-season scoring records and the all-time total scoring mark. Rated the third highest scorer in the nation, Workman was named to the All-Southern Conference first team, Look Magazine's All-American third team, and the Helms Foundation All-American second team.

Unless injuries or selective service interferes, Brown will lose but three from his 1950-51 squad. He will have nine experienced players back this year, plus a number of prospects from Coach Quentin Barnette's Little Mountaineer squad, which racked up 13 wins in 18 starts.

Baseball

Off to a slow start, the Mountaineer baseball team picked up steam after the first road trip and cruised to a season mark of 17 wins and 6 losses. West Virginia's 11-5 record in conference play earned for the Mountain men the runner-up spot in the northern division and a third place berth in the final Southern Conference standings. The Gold and Blue diamondmen dropped their opening tilt in the playoffs to Clemson, but came roaring back to beat Maryland in the consolation game.

Rifle Team

The University rifle team was by far the most successful in Mountaineer sports circles last year. The local sharpshooters copped the Greater Pittsburgh Rifle League title with 10 wins and no losses and captured top honors in the sectional tournament at Columbus, O., finishing ahead of Indiana, Michigan, Ohio State, and Notre Dame. Coaching the riflemen were Maj. John Nicholas and Sgt. Charles Brewster.

Wrestling

Coach Steve Harrick's matmen grappled their way to three victories over an eight-match schedule during the 1950-51 season. In addition, two West Virginia wrestlers,

Don Kniffen and Bob Boswell, captured individual Southern Conference titles in the 165 and unlimited divisions respectively.

Track

Winning three dual meets and a triangular engagement, Coach Art Smith's cindermen went undefeated in regular season competition. The Gold and Blue cindermen were victorious over Bethany, Ohio University, Western Reserve, Geneva, and Slippery Rock. The thinclads placed fourth in the Southern Conference meets.

Cross-Country

The West Virginia University cross-country team overran four of five regular season opponents and placed second in the Southern Conference meet. Coach Art Smith's charges outran Western Reserve, Westminster, Washington and Lee, and Ohio University, but lost out to Case Institute. The locals ran second to Maryland in the Conference race and ahead of North Carolina State, North Carolina University, Duke, Davidson, William and Mary, V. P. I., and Richmond.

Golf

Finishing out the regular campaign with a 5-1 mark, the Mountaineer linksmen entered the Southern Conference tournament and came home in sixth place. Ira E. "Rat" Rodgers was coach of the local golfers.

Tennis

West Virginia's tennis team found the going rough in and out of Southern Conference competition and managed to win only three of its nine matches. Coach Robert Brown handled the coaching duties for the Mountaineer racquetmen.

Your Growing University

The era following the end of World War II undoubtedly will be regarded by historians of the University as one of the most fruitful in the life of the institution, which was founded on February 7, 1867.

Buildings have pushed into the sky under the staccato tune of riveters' hammers, and new courses have been offered students under a broadening curriculum. Interest in the University has created new friends, and long-time supporters have experienced a rekindling of their first love.

Although physical growth has taken place in many directions, it has been carefully charted by the University's top administrators. One of the first postwar actions was acquisition of a "second campus" at a cost of $140,000 on the northern border of the city. This provides a 260-acre building space in addition to that available on the 66-acre main campus in the heart of Morgantown.

Workmen have been busy on improvements ever since the "second campus" was acquired. One of them is a regulation baseball diamond of big-league proportions. A 28-foot fence will circle the field and provide a challenging target to would-be Ralph Kiners. A football practice field 700 feet long gives booming punts plenty of room.

Other additions include six all-weather tennis courts, two with bleachers. The courts have modern surfacing. Another project is an arboretum, an out-of-doors museum of plant life. It consists of 50 acres of mostly wooded land interlaced with nature trails that lead past a lagoon, hidden valleys, rock gardens, and pond. Also on the "second campus" is a new building for storage of University equipment.

Other major improvements include the completion of Armstrong Hall, a $1.5 million classroom building, and $2 million Brooks Hall, which biology, botany, zoology, and bacteriology students call home. Mountainlair, student activities center, is a former Navy surplus building that was moved to the campus in 1947. In it the past summer, workmen put finishing touches on a $101,000 steel tank swimming pool, measuring 42 by 75 feet. Provided for swimmers are 197 lockers and 500 seats for spectators.

An addition atop the University Library (provided for in original building plans) will double the present capacity of 200,000 volumes and add reading and study rooms. This improvement is designed to provide for the University's library needs for the next 20 years. Built and equipped at a cost of $120,000, it doubles the height of the old structure.

A new 160-foot wind tunnel capable of attaining an air velocity of 250 miles per hour was completed last March. It provides valuable facilities for the teaching of aeronautical engineering, as well as research by faculty members. Covering the Field House indoor track with concrete will eliminate bothersome dust at athletic events and provide additional space for intramural basketball courts. The seating capacity is 6,800.

Started in the fall of 1950, the new $1.5 million physics building on Beechurst Avenue is expected to be completed in 1952. Included in it are an underground lead-lined radiation laboratory for nuclear research, and facilities for study in many fields, including spectroscopy, photography, optics, and radio. Southward on Beechurst the University has acquired a proposed site for a School of Music building.

Renovation of the Central Heating Plant at a cost of $500,000 was an unspectacular but necessary improvement during the past winter. Its three boilers can produce 50,000 pounds of steam per hour if needed. Fans, pumps, coal bunkers, and other equipment are controlled from a gleaming panel. Another practical addition was a 40 by 50-foot parking lot at the corner of Prospect and Price streets.

Other improvements called for the expenditure of $100,000 for three structures at the University's poultry farm in the Chestnut Ridge section. Roads leading to the Animal Husbandry, Dairy Husbandry, and Horticulture farms also received asphalt coverings.

Many students do not realize that the University has extensive holdings in addition to its two main campuses. The University owns five experimental farms near Morgantown, three experimental farms and two agricultural extension centers situated in other parts of the state, a summer camp for forestry and geology students, and an experimental forest tract.

As you can see, the University is growing in physical facilities to meet the demands of the student body and people of the State.
